

The event leaves a distinct synchronous marker bed enriched in Iridium around much of the earth and a dramatic changes in the fossil record above and below the event. The end of the age of dinosaurs being one of the most notable probable effects.