

Synoptic data sets from large remote sensing and geophysical surveys, often associated with oil exploration have opened our eyes to many new craters and possible craters around the earth.

